

About Dr. Syed Mithun Ali!

Dr. Syed Mithun Ali is a professor and former chairman in the Department of Industrial and Production Engineering in Bangladesh University of Engineering and Technology (BUET). He holds a Ph.D. majoring in supply chain management from the Nagoya Institute of Technology, Japan. He has published over 150 peer-reviewed Scopus indexed journal articles. He has a Google Scholar Citations of over 12,000 with an h-index of 61 and an i10-index of 147 as of September 28, 2026. Dr. Ali has received several recognitions and awards throughout his academic and research career. He has been listed among the Top 2% of Scientists in global author databases of standardized citation indicators since 2022, reflecting the strong impact and visibility of his research contributions. His honors include the Forum 86 Research Excellence Award (2020) and the Outstanding Researcher Award (2023) conferred by the IEOM Society International, recognizing his sustained excellence, research quality, and contributions to the international research community. His research appears in several top tier journals including the Journal of Cleaner Production, Annals of Operations Research, International Journal of Production Economics, Journal of Retailing and Consumer Services, International Journal of Production Research, Sustainable Production and Consumption, Industrial Management and Data Systems, Computers and Industrial Engineering, Business Strategy and Development, Business Strategy and the Environment and so on. His current research interest includes applied artificial intelligence and machine learning, logistics and supply chain management and supply chain risk management and tying that to supply chain sustainability.